Bali land is priced per are.

One are is 100 m². A plot of "5 are" is 500 m². Get this wrong and every listing looks cheap or expensive for the wrong reason.

1 are = 100 m². One hectare is 100 are.

Leasehold The prices in this guide are leasehold, for the full term. Foreigners can't buy freehold.

Zoning Two plots at the same price can hold six times more building. The zoning colour decides.

Prices move street by street. Treat them as a starting point for a conversation, not a valuation.

Berawa, Canggu

~$82,500 / are

Best for: the highest, steadiest occupancy in Bali and the easiest resale.

The catch: the return is largely priced in, and your budget buys a shorter lease.

Pererenan & Cemagi

$55k–75k / are

Best for: income at a mid-range budget. A decade more lease for the money.

The catch: constant construction, more green zone, and a higher risk of buying land you can't build on.

Uluwatu clifftop

$40k–60k / are

Best for: the highest nightly rates on the island for view villas.

The catch: the strictest setbacks. Buildings at Bingin were demolished in 2025.

Uluwatu inland & Bukit

$25k–40k / are

Best for: land and room to build, about a third of Berawa's price.

The catch: water supply, and long drives to everything.

Sanur

Best value, established

Best for: families, retirees and the steadiest year-round occupancy.

The catch: lower peak rates. Calm, not a scene.

Ubud

Good land value

Best for: wellness and long-stay guests, above 70% occupancy in the right pockets.

The catch: no beach, humid, and lower nightly rates.

Tabanan coast

30–50% below Canggu

Best for: entry price and upside. The Gilimanuk to Mengwi toll road is targeted for 2027 to 2028.

The catch: the rental market is years behind, and licensing is the hardest on the island.

North & East Bali

Cheapest coast

Best for: genuine quiet, black sand beaches and a long horizon.

The catch: thin rental demand and limited services. A capital play, not income.

PICK BY YOUR GOAL

The right area depends on you.

IF YOU WANT	LOOK AT
Income on a mid budget	Pererenan
Easiest resale	Berawa, Seminyak
Highest nightly rates	Uluwatu cliffs
Land to build on	Pecatu, Ungasan
Family life, steady guests	Sanur
Long-stay wellness guests	Ubud
Upside, long horizon	Tabanan

Under about $300,000, the lease term beats the postcode.
More years in a good-enough area usually wins.
